Man up and grow a row for Movember

Movember, which is an annual event to raise awareness for prostate cancer, encourages men to grow a moustache — and only a moustache — in November as a reminder to other men to talk to their doctor about the disease. Movember Winnipeg organizers say that 90 per cent of all prostate cancers can be cured if caught early enough.

Crime 'can't be eliminated by policing alone': Chief

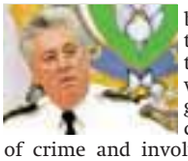
Everyone must step up to curb crime, Winnipeg Police Chief Keith McCaskill says

A co-operative effort from police, government, social agencies and communities is what's needed to meaningfully tackle violent crime in the city, Winnipeg's top cop says.

Another homicide this year will break the record of 34 killings set in 2004. Four remain unsolved, including two taking place over the weekend.

Figuring out why there's more bloodshed this year is difficult, said Winnipeg Police Service Chief Keith McCaskill, pictured.

"It's very hard to get your finger on," McCaskill said, adding most killings are "spur of the moment," unpredictable events. The nature of the charges laid in connection to them reflects that, he said.



A long-awaited strategic plan to be released to the public in two weeks will set targets to reduce certain types of crime and involve boosting police presence in some areas of the city, McCaskill said.

But tackling violent crime requires effort, not just from police, but also government, communities and NGOs, McCaskill added.

"Crime … can't be eliminated by policing alone, there's social issues here," McCaskill said. He cited a high number of youth charged with homicide-related crimes this year (11) and issues of substance abuse among violent offenders.

Mayor mystified by Occupy Winnipeg

If Winnipeggers aren't quite sure why there are people camping in Memorial Park, they're not the only ones — even the Mayor doesn't know.

When asked about the Occupy Winnipeg movement — now entering its third week, Mayor Sam Katz was mystified.

"A lot of us are trying to figure out what is the point," Katz told media late last week. "What are they trying to accomplish? I personally don't get it."

Occupiers told Metro Winnipeg the mayor has not been seen.

"No, he hasn't (been here)," Terry Weaymouth said. "It would be nice if he came here to talk to some of us."

Scott George said the idea of the mayor visiting the camp was brought up at one of their meetings.

"Why are we here?" George asked the non-present mayor. "I'd love to have him come down and check it out. He'd be welcome. Would he come? I don't think so."

Instead, Occupiers are suggesting Mayor Katz seek out the group's communiqué on their website, (occupy-winnipeg.com) which lists some issues the local movement has focused on, including youth addiction services, dismantling of the CWB, housing and water for northern communities, the Comprehensive Economic Trade Agreement, and "government accountability to communities without corporate interference."

The Memorial Park camp, now numbering more than 40 tents, has a generator-powered media tent and expects an internet connection soon over which they will stream their general assembly meetings.

No space for Wildewood: Residents

People fear housing project will brings noise and traffic to the area

JAMES TURNER
@METRONEWS.CA

A proposed new housing development on the site of Winnipeg's Wildewood Club appears to have drawn the ire of many living the quiet, stately area.

Residents of Wildwood are expected to pack into a meeting at City Hall tonight to oppose granting a conditional use permit to developer Medina Holding Ltd.

Medina is hoping to build a six-storey, 65-unit housing complex that some say will increase traffic congestion, limit neighbourhood green space and alter the pastoral character of their neighbourhood.

Dozens of opposition letters have been filed with the City Clerk's office, with many people from the area expected to publicly air their concerns at the 6 p.m. meeting.

One of them will be Shelly Normand. She and her family live directly across from the proposed North Drive build site. She says her family's privacy will be lost in the shadow of a 60-foot-tall building.

"I would never agree for a six-storey building," Normand said, adding she's worried about a development domino effect should the project proceed.

"Will he stop?," Normand wondered. "Once he gets the go, who's going to say what they're going to do. That's what a lot of people are concerned about," she said.

City administrators are recommending the land-use permit be granted on condition the project not exceed 65 units and that city officials sign off on final plans before building goes ahead.

Administrators cited reports projecting the need for more multiple-family dwellings as people get older and move out of their single-family homes but want to remain in familiar neighbourhoods.

▶ People opposed to a proposed housing development in Wildwood are expected to pack a meeting tonight at City Hall.

But North Drive resident Stan Carter says that's not the case — at least for him.

At age 92, he's lived in his home across from the Wildewood Club for half a century and has no desire to move anytime soon.

"It just wouldn't make financial sense," he said.

"If I was going into a condo … it would cost me a lot more money."

Carter said he doesn't expect the community opposition to be able to derail the project.

"From past experience, I think it will probably go through," he said.

Canadian released from Saudi jail

Edmonton imam abruptly freed from Saudi Arabia jail after being beaten and arrested Friends claim intense media focus aided in his release

A Canadian imam who was beaten, arrested and falsely charged while on pilgrimage in Saudi Arabia has been freed following media coverage of his ordeal and pressure from a human rights group.

Usama Al-Atar, 33, of Edmonton, was released yesterday following publicity about the incident, which took place Sunday in Medina, said Mohamed Hayward, who witnessed the attack.

Al-Atar was leading a small prayer group that included Hayward when they were asked to move along by Saudi religious police.

Between 10 and 15 of the officers then harassed the pilgrims and attacked Al-Atar before taking him into custody, Hayward said. Al-Atar was being "virtually strangled" by his assailants, he added.

Hayward said he didn't try to resist the roughing up and remained passive, but authorities still went on to arrest him.

But when he was expected to make a court appearance yesterday, Al-Atar was abruptly released instead.

The London-based commission, which spoke to witnesses, said Al-Atar, a Shiite, may have been arrested for criticizing the kingdom's handling of uprisings in Yemen and Bahrain.

Massoud Shadjareh, spokesman for the rights group, said the arrest reflects Saudi intolerance toward Muslims who do not follow the country's conservative Wahhabi form of Islam.

Anger mounts, water rises

Tempers flared along a flood barrier protecting Thailand's capital from a record deluge surging into the city, with angry residents scuffling with security forces in an attempt to force open a floodgate that left their homes swamped and battling rising waters.

Vancouver cops call for charges after riot probe

● PHYLICIA TORREVILLAS IN VANCOUVER

Nearly five months after mayhem tore through the streets of Vancouver, the Vancouver Police Department has announced the first 163 charges recommended against 60 people who allegedly took part in the Stanley Cup riot.

"This is just the beginning," police Chief Jim Chu said yesterday, adding some of the recommended charges include mischief, break-and-enter and participation in a riot.

Chu stressed that the 50 men and 10 women represent only the beginning of those who may face charges for looting, burning cars and damaging property following the June 15 riot.

The chief also took aim at those who criticized the length of the riot investigation.

"There have been those who told us our decision to be thorough was wrong," he said.

Chu said that their thorough investigation has led them to more substantial charges in several cases.

SHHH! DON'T TELL ANYONE

SHE SAYS ...

JESSICA NAPIER
METRO

You can't deny the thrill of sharing a secret, especially when that secret isn't really yours to tell. According to a 2009 British study, women who were told a secret were likely to bite their tongues for an average of just 47 hours and 15 minutes before blabbing. That's less than two full days, and frankly,I'm not surprised.

In an age of celebrity blogs and constant social networking, over-sharing is now the norm, while keeping a secret has become a lost art.

As trivial as it might be, gossip is a guilty pleasure that just won't quit. It's what keeps US Weekly in business and it's why Perez Hilton isn't working at a Taco Bell.

Sharing secrets can serve many purposes. Some find it to be a positive form of catharsis, others use gossip as a communication tool to network or bond with a group, and some just get a twisted schadenfreude-esque delight out of the pain and suffering of others.

Anyone who tracks the ups and downs of Jennifer Aniston's love life — you can go ahead and put yourself in that third category.

"So does privacy count for nothing any more? We're posting, sharing and consuming an unhealthy amount of information about each other and ourselves; isn't it time we start re-learning the art of keeping secrets."

And it's not just other people's secrets that we have trouble keeping. We feel entitled to the intimate details of others, and, in turn, believe our own personal lives should be of interest to everyone else.

We've become so accustomed to living our lives online that we don't even blink as we share the minutiae of all our milestones — birthdays, engagements, babies, divorces — with friends, family, future employers and hundreds of acquaintances we barely even know.

So does privacy count for nothing anymore? We're posting, sharing and consuming an unhealthy amount of information about each other and ourselves; isn't it time we start thinking about relearning the art of keeping secrets?

To clarify, secrets are not lies. I'm not condoning deceit, just the idea that sometimes withholding information is better than putting it all out there. Keeping secrets amongst our friends and lovers can actually be healthy. I mean, isn't it nice to keep some of the mystery alive?

Here are just some things that are better kept to yourself: your nauseating pet names for your partner, status updates on that skin rash you've been dealing with, photos of pelvic bones, weekly measurements of your expanding "baby bump" and anything involving your bathroom habits.

Please, folks, do away with full disclosure and realize that not every part of your life belongs to the Internet.

The country is heavily in debt, we are heading into a double-dip recession and what is this so-called Conservative government doing? Well, why not spend a fortune and add more seats to the House of Commons. Yes, indeed, more MP salaries, expensive staff and money flushed down the toilet yearly. Reduce the amount of seats where the provinces are over represented such as Quebec. This fixes the problem without costing a fortune.

Thank you for the interesting reading about the Canadian musical legend.

He may be a "mean drunk and a bad husband," but the immutable fact remains — his music transcends any personal flaws he might have. He is one of the few Canadian music icons popular worldwide.

Man severs arm with homemade guillotine

Bellingham police have dismantled a homemade guillotine apparently used by a man to sever his right arm at a transient camp in Washington.

Sgt. Les Gitts says police saved only the heavy metal plate used as the blade, in case it is needed for evidence.

Gitts described the guillotine as "pretty elaborate." It was out of sight in a wooded area until police investigated Thursday after the injured man walked into a clinic, leaving his arm behind.

According to Fox News, police say the guillotine unexpectedly dropped on the man's shoulder.

Police searched the area and found the guillotine and the severed arm. He was airlifted to Harborview Medical Center in Seattle in hope it could be reattached.

Gitts said yesterday he didn't know if that was successful. The hospital wouldn't say for privacy reasons. The man was in satisfactory condition yesterday.

Officers say the device was constructed from wood the man found by scavenging the local area.

Economy up in August

Summer numbers were better than expected Energy sector boosts third-quarter growth

A surging energy sector gave a healthy 0.3 per cent boost to the economy in August, suggesting Canada rebounded much more strongly than believed during the summer, following a surprising dip in the spring.

Statistics Canada also upgraded July's gross domestic product a tick to 0.4 per cent yesterday, which places the economy on track to post a strong three per cent gain in the third quarter.

Following an 0.4 per cent contraction in the second quarter, and expectations of softness due to the market turmoil that took hold in July, some analysts had speculated it was possible for Canada to have suffered a technical recession of two negative quarters over the summer.

But that is no longer in the realm of possibility, given the bigger than expected numbers in the first two months.

"The recession chatter ... looks pretty ridiculous in light of almost four per cent GDP growth in the latest three months."

New album from Amy

Collection of Winehouse work to be released in December by musical partners Mark Ronson and Salaam Remi Posthumous release a 'fitting testament' to the singer

STUART WILSON/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Longtime musical partners of Amy Winehouse are working on a posthumous album for the singer, which will be released in December.

A new album of recordings by the late soul singer Amy Winehouse will be released in December, Island Records said Monday.

It said Lioness: Hidden Treasures will contain 12 songs — previously unreleased tracks, alternative versions of existing hits and brand new songs — recorded by the beehive-wearing singer who died at her London home on July 23.

The label said Winehouse's longtime musical partners Mark Ronson and Salaam Remi had spent time since her death listening to recordings of the singer, who many said never sang or played a song the same way twice.

Island Records said the duo quickly realized that they had "a collection of songs that deserved to be heard; a collection of songs that were a fitting testament to Amy the artist and, as importantly, Amy their friend."

The album — Winehouse's third after Frank and Back to Black — will be released on Dec. 5.

Ronson and Remi compiled the tracks in collaboration with Winehouse's family, management and the label.

Winehouse's final studio recording — a cover of Body & Soul sung with Tony Bennett — will be included in the album.

The singer's father, Mitch Winehouse, said he had never before heard another one of the tracks, Halftime, and described the song as "just incredibly beautiful."

"If the family had felt that this album wasn't up to the standard of Frank and Back To Black we would never have agreed to release it and we believe it will stand as a fitting tribute to Amy's musical legacy," he said in the Island Records statement.

A donation of $1.60 from the sale of each album in the U.K. will go to a foundation to assist disadvantaged children and young adults set up in the artist's name following her death.

Last week a British coroner ruled the Grammy-winning singer died from accidental alcohol poisoning when she resumed drinking after weeks of abstinence.

The 27-year-old Winehouse had fought a very public battle with drug and alcohol abuse for years, and there had been much speculation that she died from a drug overdose.

Beginners
Genre: Comedy
Director: Mike Mills
Stars: Ewan McGregor, Christopher Plummer, Melanie Laurent

Love can be so awkward. Consider the predicament of Hal (Christopher Plummer, never better). Now that his wife of 44 years has died, he's decided, at 75, that it's time to come out as the gay man he's always (secretly) been. Hal's transformation involves a complete wardrobe change, a decades-younger boyfriend (Goran Visnjic) and considerable adjustment on the part of his son Oliver (Ewan McGregor).

In flashbacks and vignettes set to a Vaudeville-era soundtrack, these delicate story threads are teased out. Remarkably, Beginners' disjointed narratives don't test our patience. Instead, director Mike Mills' characters become more endearing.

Cars 2
Genre: Animation
Directors: John Lasseter, Brad Lewis
Stars: Owen Wilson, Larry the Cable Guy, Michael Caine

Pixar's 'toon machine spins its wheels with this low-octane sequel to Cars, its 2006 clunker.

The movie opens like a James Bond picture, with an Aston Martin (voiced by Michael Caine) seeking to infiltrate an oil rig in the middle of the Pacific Ocean. Back in Radiator Springs, race car Lightning McQueen (Owen Wilson) and his tow truck sidekick, Tow Mater (Larry the Cable Guy), are preparing for their own international adventure that involves green energy. This Pixar product, its treads thinning, is aimed primarily at younger kids (toys?). It's a case of money driving over art.

A Twilight turn-on

The new Twilight film features a love scene that was steamy enough to originally earn it an R-rating — and star Kristen Stewart wasn't surprised. "There are two big sex scenes in the two [final] films," Stewart tells the U.K. edition of Glamour. "It was so weird, it didn't even feel like we were doing a scene within a Twilight film."

AND IT'S OVER, 72 DAYS LATER

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

A whole 72 days after walking down the aisle with NBA player Kris Humphries, Kim Kardashian filed for divorce yesterday morning.

The unhappy couple is not seeking an annulment, and Kim checked off the usual "irreconcilable differences," asking the court to deny spousal support to Humphries.

It's the second divorce for Kim — who split with music producer Damon Thomas in 2004 after four years of marriage — and the first for Humphries, who was blindsided by the filing, according to TMZ, and is "bummed."

As it's all but impossible to remember, they very loosely tied the knot on August 20 at a ceremony that was estimated to cost around $10 million. (You somehow missed that? A re-run of the two-part, four-hour Kim's Fairytale Wedding: A Kardashian Event is scheduled to air from 8 a.m.-noon on E! today.)

We're not saying we're perfect over here, but we would have had the decency to fake it for 18 months or so. Seriously, we've committed to packs of gum for longer than 72 days.

Laser tattoo removal — solution or scar?

Having your first love's name inked on your buttocks seemed like a great idea A decade later, you wish you didn't have a constant reminder of your first heartbreak Is tattoo laser removal really effective, or will it leave you permanently scarred? Metro tries to find out

ROMINA McGUINNESS
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

Tattoos are a taboo. At least they used to be. As a rebellious teen your parents warn you against them and as an adult they reflect badly in the work place. Now, thanks to celebrities including Angelina Jolie, David Beckham and Megan Fox, a tattoo is more body art than ex-gangster.

What happens when you can't stand it anymore and want to have it removed? According to tattoo artist Saira Hunjan, you can never be sure you'll never regret a tattoo.

"Choose the right artist, style, design and meaning behind it. Only then will you be likely to be proud to wear it forever."

The obvious answer is to never cruise into a tattoo parlour on a whim. Getting a tattoo isn't like getting a haircut. If it goes wrong, you can't wait until it grows out.

"It's really important to find an artist with real expertise. The best can have a long waiting list but it's worth waiting," advises Hunjan.

An ex lover's name is amongst the most common tattoos people want covered or removed.

"It's best to design something that symbolizes the way they feel about that person rather than their name," says Hunjan.

Laser removal is one of the only options, but how safe is it?

Tattoo removal specialist Dr Alex Kaplan explains how choosing the wrong clinic or laser can leave your skin permanently damaged.

"Older methods of tattoo removal involved burning, scraping or cutting out the tattoo. Thankfully, today's Q Switch laser is light years ahead," says Kaplan.

Tattoo pigment is hard to remove.

"The pigment injected into the lower layers of skin becomes sealed away by a tough network of collagen fibres and it isn't easy to remove the tattoo pigment without affecting the surrounding tissue," adds Kaplan.

The Q switch laser is a rapid, high-energy laser beam applied at different wavelengths (depending on the tattoo's colouring; red, black and blue ink are the most receptive colours; green, yellow and white the least). The process is painful but then again if you could stand the pain of a tattoo, you should be able to bear this.

Better yet, get a tat you like and stick with it.

"A tattoo should mark a significant memory and emotion in your journey through life," says Hunjan. "So take your time when choosing."

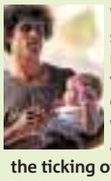
Men and babies



Women shouldn't be the only ones to worry about the ticking of their biological clock. A new study shows that male fertility also declines with age. If by the age of 45 a man is still childless and wants a family, he should start. Past that point and the chance of conceiving could drop to 35 per cent.

Sweet Watermelon Rind Relish

This recipe calls for watermelon rind with the thin outer dark green skin removed. The easiest way to do that is to use a paring knife to cut away the red flesh, then use a vegetable peeler to remove the skin.

Preparation:

1. On a 15-cm (6-inch) square of cheesecloth, combine cloves and allspice. Tie cloth into a bundle.
2. In a large saucepan over medium heat, combine watermelon rind, sugar, vinegar, salt, cinnamon sticks, ginger and spice bundle. Bring to a simmer and cook for 1 hour or until watermelon rind is tender. Allow watermelon to fully cool in liquid. Remove and discard spice bundle, cinnamon sticks and ginger. Store in an airtight container in the refrigerator for up to a month.

Ingredients:

- 5 ml (1 tsp) whole cloves
- 5 ml (1 tsp) whole allspice
- 1 l (4 cups) watermelon rind, green skin removed, cut into 5-mm (1/4-inch) chunks
- 375 ml (1 1/2 cups) sugar
- 250 ml (1 cup) red wine vinegar
- 5 ml (1 tsp) salt
- 2 cinnamon sticks
- 1 piece (5 cm/2 inches) fresh ginger, peeled and cut into chunks

PROPER BUSINESS CARD ETIQUETTE

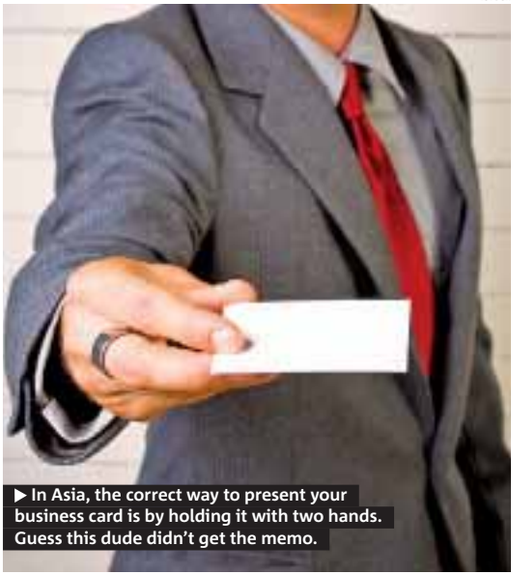
FOR MORE, VISIT CHARLES MACPHERSON.COM

How does one appear international toward other cultures without actually ever travelling? This is actually easier than you may think.

I'm here in Shanghai, China, and as I observe international culture one thing is evident: local knowledge is power!

In North America and many parts of Europe the business card is not seen as anything of importance, but merely a paper document to facilitate the exchange of business contact details. However, in Asian countries, business cards are considered an exchange of something important, personal and meaningful between two people.

ISTOCK



▶ In Asia, the correct way to present your business card is by holding it with two hands. Guess this dude didn't get the memo.

Within Asia it is correct and commonly practiced by everyone to hand your business card to others in the following fashion.

1. When presenting your card, always use two hands to hold it.

2. When receiving a business card, always use two hands to receive it.

3. Once you receive a business card, always look at the card. Remember this is considered important, so you should honour the person giving it to you by reading it.

4. Hold onto the card and never just discard it. Keep the business card either in your hand or visible on a desk while you are speaking with the person who gave it to you.

So now how does this knowledge relate to you in Canada?

Firstly, if someone hands you a business card in this fashion you will know what to do.

But more importantly, people will have a positive impression of you, your worldly knowledge and your respect for other cultures.

Getting divorced? Here's your new MO

LINDA CLARKE
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN BOSTON

Divorce is one of the most stressful and debilitating processes in life, but Lee Block — a two-time divorcée and the author of Re-Singled: 12 Truths, Half-Truths, and Untruths of Divorce — says it doesn't have to be.

For anyone caught in the process, here is her guide to retaining mental and physical health while moving on.

Do

Forgive yourself

"This is the first thing I tell everyone. You have guilt, but life is a learning lesson and nothing is a mistake. Go forward armed with the knowledge you take from the divorce and what you've learned about who you are."

Be grateful

"You've got to count your blessings: You have a roof over your head (and) food on the table. You and your family are healthy.

"Even if you have depression, start being thankful for those small things, and you will begin to feel better."

Take some 'me' time

"Whether that's walking, taking a long bath, starting a hobby or doing yoga, it allows you to focus away from what's going on. Yoga or some type of mediation is centreing. Do something that will help you start each day fresh."

Don't

Be angry

"This is very difficult, but it gets easier with practice. When you see your ex, just say, 'Hello, how are you?' and move on quickly. You don't have to (talk)."

Speak any ill

"If your ex is badmouthing you all over town, don't do the same thing. They're probably picking at you to get a reaction. It's like a child: If you give them attention, then they do it more. Take the high road."

Be bitter

"There's no such thing as fair. Take a step back and look at everything. Take a long look at the good things."

DATING A MONEY DUMMY

FUN AND FRUGAL

LESLEY SCORGIE
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

Someday, your financial situation will impact the future of your life partner. So, let's face it; no one wants to date a financial dope.

Bad financial habits such as debt and poor spending patterns reflect a person's values and indicate whether they care about their financial future. Irresponsible money management is a huge irritant for people who are dating; one person might feel pressured into paying for everything or they may sense their partner isn't committed to a long-term financial plan. This results in resentment, not butterflies.

It's ultra-sexy to date someone who doesn't tow monetary baggage behind them and has their financial house in order.

Get organized to rid your debt. Cut up all but one credit card, list out who you owe money to and how much. Negotiate interest rates and consolidate expensive credit card balances. Trade in your $3 Italian soda for a free glass of water so you can pay a little extra on the highest interest rate debt.

If you're overextended with your house or car, downsize both. If you can't keep up with payments, see a credit counsellor.

If overspending is your problem, fix it. Remove all temptations to spend. Unsubscribe from shopping websites or online coupons.

Draw up a budget and stick to it. Hide credit cards by burying them in the backyard. Don't go to malls, plazas and other shopping venues.

I don't suggest steering clear of dating while you're reducing debt and growing investments. Rather, put together a responsible money management plan that shows you care about your future. You'll feel much better about yourself so that you can be more yourself when you're in dating mode. FOR LESLEY SCORGIE'S FULL COLUMN VISIT METRONEWS.CA

Keeping loans in the family

ON MONEY

ALISON GRIFFITHS
MONEY@METRONEWS.CA

How would you like to have a $500,000 loan outstanding and be in doubt about ever getting it back?

Add in the fact that family members are involved and you have a recipe for financial and relationship disaster.

This is exactly what is facing a couple who wrote to me last week. The loan in question was to their daughter and son-in-law to buy a home.

"You can make family loans work if you are strict about the conditions."
-ALISON'S MONEY RULE

Recently, the daughter quit work to become a stay-at-home-mom. As a result, they can't afford the loan payments and want to "renegotiate."

Just imagine the acrimony that this loan has birthed. Mom and Dad need the income from the loan. The kids are looking for payment relief. Mess.

Many financial experts counsel against lending money to kids, parents or siblings. In a perfect world, I would agree.

However, deserving people often can't get loans for legitimate purposes. Perhaps they have a short credit history, are self-employed or have experienced job loss or illness.

I won't tell you not to lend money to family members, but keep it businesslike. You will be doing everyone concerned a favour. Here are some guidelines:

ISTOCK

▶ Many financial experts counsel against lending money to kids, parents or siblings.

1. Know the reason. As the lender you have the right to ask about the purpose of the loan. If you are uncomfortable with where the money is going, keep it in your wallet.
2. Assess affordability. The borrower should draw up a budget proving they can make the payments. The lender must also ensure they can afford to lend the money and do without the income if the borrower defaults.
3. Put it on paper. A signed agreement should detail principal, interest, payments and the term. For a house purchase, have a legal mortgage drawn up, which gives you recourse if payments aren't made.
4. Get post-dated cheques or set up a separate bank account with an automatic transfer of the payments from the borrower.

None of this protects you from a family loan gone wrong. But at least you will have done your best to ensure both sides are clear about the conditions.

Grocery stores aim to cash in on health foods

More of us are spending our hard earned money on specialty foods Examples include gluten-free bread, products that are high in antioxidants or low in salt, as well as ethnic dishes

Consumers can expect to see more products tying together the theme of food and health on grocery store shelves in the coming year, according to the head of the Canadian Federation of Independent Grocers.

John Scott, president and CEO of the organization, says manufacturers are developing more products geared toward people who have such health issues as celiac disease or allergies to various ingredients.

"In food the biggest trend right now is we're really seeing the whole issue of healthy manifested in the mainstream products," Scott said yesterday from the floor of the trade show Grocery Innovations Canada 2011, the country's largest gathering of grocers, and the place where the food industry introduces new lines and products.

"For example, you're seeing large companies like Nestle and General Mills and that kind of thing paying attention to things like gluten-free and other allergy-free issues because these are becoming big issues in society. Food and health is a strong issue" and a "real trend in our society."

And it's a trend that transcends all cultures, said Scott, who has headed the organization for 20 years.

"Everyone is interested in food and health. We've all of a sudden realized that whatever we eat manifests itself in how we're going to be down the road, so salt reduction is very important, fat reduction is very important ..."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

▶ John Scott

"In food the biggest trend right now is we're really seeing the whole issue of healthy manifested in the mainstream products."

JOHN SCOTT, PRESIDENT AND CEO, CANADIAN FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT GROCERS

He cited the improvements made in gluten-free products, which are sought after by celiac sufferers whose small intestine won't absorb parts of foods that are important for staying healthy, such as the gluten protein found in wheat, rye and barley.

The industry is also attuned to better pricing of such products, he said. "There was a time you had to pay a premium for that and now natural foods ... are all priced competitive."

At the trade show, he cited baked products that are lactose free, kosher and chemical free without added salt, a Greek-style yogurt with no gluten, no gelatin and 100 per cent cane sugar, a sausage made from organic, home-raised pork with added omega-3 and no antibiotics, and "better-for-you products heavy in antioxidants, such as dark chocolates."

"You're going to see more healthy products like that on the market," he said.

Another trend Scott pointed to at the mammoth show, which featured some 500 booths and runs through today, is more prepared ethnic foods.

"Society is becoming very used to consuming ethnic foods, particularly in restaurants, and we like to have them at home, but we don't know how to prepare them so companies are tending to produce that type of product," said Scott. THE CANADIAN PRESS

JOEL AUERBACH/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Evander Kane is congratulated after scoring a goal against the Florida Panthers last night.

Andrew Ladd and Kyle Wellwood each scored goals in a shootout and the Winnipeg Jets beat the Florida Panthers 4-3 last night.

Evander Kane scored two goals and Wellwood also scored in regulation for Winnipeg. Ondrej Pavelec stopped a season-high 40 shots for the Panthers.

Tomas Fleischmann scored two goals in the third period for the Panthers and Jason Garrison also scored for Florida, while Jose Theodore made 28 saves.

Each team scored a goal in the game's final minutes of regulation.

Fleischmann's second goal came on a power play with 2:10 left and gave Florida a 3-2 lead. His shot from between the circles went over Pavelec's shoulder.

The Jets tied it 3-all at 19:10 on Kane's second goal on a shot from in front. The goal was awarded after a video review to determine if there was a high stick.

Trailing 2-1 in the third, the Panthers tied the game on Fleischmann's first goal. Mike Weaver's shot was deflected backwards off the skate of a Jets player. Fleischmann picked up the puck before the defender could find it and swept it past Pavelec on the stick side at 3:13.

The Jets scored the game's first goal at 3:44 of the first. Ladd took the puck from behind the net, then centred it to Wellwood low in the circle. His one-timer beat Theodore.

The Jets stretched their lead to 2-0 on Kane's power-play goal later in the period. Kane grabbed a loose puck in the left circle and his ensuing wrist shot got past Theodore at 9:58.

Florida closed to 2-1 with 20 seconds left in the first when Garrison's slapshot from just inside the blue-line went past Pavelec, just under the crossbar. It was Garrison's third goal in three games and fifth of the season, matching his goal total in 73 games last season. Garrison leads all NHL defencemen in goals.

Argos not ready to forgive 'dirty' hit

Winnipeg Blue Bombers defensive back Johnny Sears will try to defend his hit on Steven Jyles to the Canadian Football League today, but in the court of the Toronto Argonauts he has already been found guilty.

Argo players didn't hold back in expressing their disapproval of Sears' hit, which knocked Jyles out of Friday's game in Winnipeg. Sears delivered a head-first shot to Jyles' head as the Argo quarterback slid feet-first after a 12-yard gain in a 27-22 victory.

Jyles, who is still being assessed for a possible concussion and sat out practice yesterday, called the hit "dirty."

"Getting hit is a part of the game," Jyles said. "What this guy did is dirty.

"He didn't, not once, come to apologize or say 'Hey, man I didn't mean to do that.' Not once, so I took it that he intended to do it.

"I'll never have any respect for that guy, never, as long as he's playing in this league. I put it behind me, but as far as that guy himself, I don't even want to say his name."

Linebacker Jason Pottinger, who was ejected from the game along with Sears for leaving the bench, called it a dirty hit and noted that regardless of intent it is illegal for a tackler to lead with his head.

Pottinger didn't back off when asked if the incident is over.

"It's over for this year," he said. "Any retaliation will be 100 per cent within the rulebook because we're not the type of team that's going to take any cheap shots.

"Just tell him to keep his head on a swivel. A legit hit within the rulebook may come."
